all the senses after eating prison food for all those months, but upon returning from the men's room, Terry commented, "Wow, real porcelain!" With all the luxuries and benefits of our affluent society, Jim could see that we ought never to forget the simple pleasures of freedom.

Peggy remembers thinking how tragic it was to see Terry give up a pension, lose his rank and spend five months in prison. "Although we didn't want him to go to jail, for me it was a God thing that he was imprisoned in our backyard." What she and Jim did not know at the time was that they were a godsend to Terry.

Orly Taitz, Esq.: "I believe [Obama] is the most dangerous thing one can imagine."

There is an expression that applies to Barack Hussein Obama's birth certificate. It is attributed to President Abraham Lincoln and you probably are familiar with it: You can fool some of the people all of the time, and all of the people some of the time, but you cannot fool all of the people all of the time."

No one likes to be fooled at any time, and that is one of the reasons why the Congress, the press and the American people cannot and will not face the truth about this president's "natural born" citizenship status. They've been fooled and can't deal with the fact that they truly have been, as the expression goes, "hoodwinked." The birth certificate Barack Obama presented at his rather hastily called press conference in the spring of 2011 would not hold up in an impartial court of law; it is a forgery. Perhaps the press, Congress and many citizens might wish the issue would just go away so they wouldn't have to deal with the embarrassing fact that they believe and support a lie. Well, it isn't going away, because there is one voice that will not be silenced. And that is the voice of Orly Taitz.

The cover-up of Obama's true identity is extensive and reaches every level of government, including the institution most responsible for defending our rights as citizens—our court system.

Orly Taitz has been a driving force in the Constitutional Movement (often called the "birther movement") and has taken her claims and evidence into our courts. The result? Judges have rudely dismissed and ridiculed her. They have literally challenged her sanity to bring such a charge against the sitting president. But Orly Taitz knows fraud when she see it, and her training and background tell her that the worse kind of fraud—the treasonous kind—cannot be tolerated in a republic that is supposed to follow its Constitution and the rule of law.

If you visit Orly Taitz's website, you are greeted with a banner: World's Leading Obama Eligibility Challenge Web Site. This banner is an affirmation of the efforts of a tireless and vigilant soldier on what seems to be a never-ending mission to challenge the eligibility of Barack Hussein Obama to hold the office of President of the United States. Orly Taitz is unstoppable.

Counselor Taitz has been there since the beginning. For years, she has challenged the authenticity of the "short form" birth certificate Obama first presented to the American people. But not only that; she also recognized the fraudulent résumé of a man who came from nowhere to the U.S. Senate, then straight to the White House.

She has also followed the steady stream of Social Security, Selective Service and other documents published by the White House and has had each professionally examined. A "stream" because there have been so many! All are at best deceptive.

Orly Taitz has taken this evidence nationwide to news stations and other media outlets, to individuals and community groups. As a lawyer, she has a keen understanding of Article II, Section 1 of the Constitution, and she has challenged newscasters and networks to get the facts straight about the issue. Few, if any, understand the meaning of "natural born" citizen and that is her starting point in most interviews. Her goal has been to educate and inform. The result? As in the courts, she has been ridiculed and belittled, her reputation "vandalized" before numerous audiences both publicly and privately. The media have castigated her by being rude and condescending. Bill O'Reilly typified this attitude when he called her a "nut." (One must admit, however, that the media outlets are consistent regarding Obama's eligibility: even the competitive news services have been mum on this lie.)

It was the inevitable consequence of her desire to see our country back on the right track that brought Terry Lakin's case to Orly Taitz's attention. She has been conscientious in supporting him because the lieutenant colonel is testimony to the ends to which some people will go to support the Constitution and save the citizenry from the path to serfdom. How interesting that sometimes one person can see things that millions of others can't—or won't—see.

As a lawyer, Taitz anchor of our political system defends the laws that govern her ancestry, the government she now lives in and the United States from which she was born. Obama above all else.

A number of her clients have been seriously injured.

Obama has devalued the American dollar.

A person who passed a passport died in the process.

A Kenyan birth certificate was found to be fraudulent.

Obama's first name is not Barack.

Obama is having a hard time getting elected.

Election fraud is rampant.

If any of these allegations are true and if you believe in the Constitution, you should know Orly Taitz stands in error. She declares is true and if you believe in the Constitution, you should know her after you have seen the five o'clock news and read the newspaper you read. And watch the news on television.

Orly Taitz has failed to challenge Obama that deserves to be impeached. She has boldly declared that Obama is a fraud, in that he was raised in a white house and groomed in the White House. This is a much scarier than anything else.

As a lawyer, Taitz is cognizant of the rule of law that has historically been the anchor of our political system. As the child of Russian immigrants, she defends the laws that govern her family in their adopted country. In the land of her ancestry, the government was above the laws that governed the people. Is she now to live in a duplicate society...one that exempts the president of the United States from the basic tenets of its own Constitution? Is Barack Hussein Obama above the law?

If you've heard her speak, these are the kinds of things she reports:

A number of homosexuals from Obama's former church have died mysteriously.

Obama has dozens of Social Security numbers—and his passport is inaccurate.

A person who was cooperating with the FBI in connection with Obama's passport died mysteriously, shot in the head.

A Kenyan birth certificate with the name "Barack Obama" is authentic.

Obama's first act as president was to donate money to Hamas, which Taitz claims will be used to build Qassam rockets.

Obama is having the Federal Emergency Management Agency build internment camps for "anti-Obama dissidents."

Election fraud is part of the Obama presidency.

If any of these allegations are inaccurate or erroneous by any standard, Orly Taitz stands in error and deserves the negative press she gets. If what she declares is true and accurate in part or whole...well, you be the judge. But judge her after you have done your own research, the kind that reaches beyond the five o'clock news and the front page of Time or Newsweek or the newspaper you read. And watch out for the "experts"—they have their agendas too.

Orly Taitz has faithfully uncovered details and facts about Barack Hussein Obama that deserve our scrutiny. Knowing what she knows, it is no wonder she boldly declares, "I believe [Obama] is the most dangerous thing one can imagine, in that he represents radical communism and radical Islam. He was born and raised in radical Islam, all of his associations are with radical Islam, and he was groomed in the environment of the dirty Chicago mafia. Can there be anything scarier than that?"

You don't sum up the life or mission of Orly Taitz in a dozen paragraphs. She is an example to Americans who question our government when it compromises the Constitution with its actions, edicts or orders. Orly Taitz is one who is willing to stand up for the truth.

So, considering her determination and political insight, let's go back to that quote of Abraham Lincoln and make this adaptation: "You can fool some of the people, but no matter what the courts try to dodge or the press publicizes or the White House suppresses, you cannot fool Orly Taitz!"

Miki Booth: He's shredding the Constitution.

Miki Booth is a fighter: "I want people to hear the truth, because facts have a way of changing their minds." These are the words of a wife, mother, rancher and now author of a new book, Memoirs of a Community Organizer from Hawaii.

To Miki, the truth about Obama does matter, and she has become a warrior in the fight to remove him from the Oval Office. She says that her involvement in this mission started several years ago when a friend recommended that she view a video of Lt. Col. Terry Lakin. She located the website and clicked on the play button. Before her was the kind of person she had admired all her life, someone willing to stand alone and pay a price for the truth, even willing to surrender his own career for what he believed.

"When I was done viewing the video I wanted to be a champion for him, to join his cause and lend him my support," says Miki.

Miki had already been doing her own research into President Obama. "I researched everything and anything about him," she says. "What I learned was disturbing, and ever since, I have shared the facts about Barack Hussein Obama with anyone who will listen.

Miki continues, "I find that some people want to know the truth, while others find the truth disturbing and reject it. It's not that they deny the facts as much as they don't really believe this could happen in America."

Today, Miki and her family make their home in Oklahoma, but their roots are in Hawaii. Her family relocated there from Japan when she was two years old, and she grew up as a typical keiki, a child of the culture, eating the traditional foods, attending the same schools and hanging out with friends on the
