Dear Sir or Madam:

I am writing to document my correspondence with Mr. Damon Dunn. On July 10, 2009 Mr. Dunn contacted our office via telephone and asked for his ineligible voter registration record to be removed from the Duval County database. I contacted the Division of Elections later that day to inquire if this was possible and the Legal Department for the Division informed me that the record could not be deleted from the database because voter registration is permanent record.

I then mailed a letter to Mr. Dunn informing him of my findings. I have not had additional correspondence with Mr. Dunn since this incident.

Thank you,

Damon Dunn for CA Sec. of State!

By Mark DeVaughn Contributing Writer Posted Jan 11, 2010

More

Former Cardinal wide receiver and kick return specialist Damon Dunn once showcased a God-given talent for following his blockers and running for daylight. After a successful career in commercial real estate in Orange County, the former Texan with finely-tuned rhetorical and communicative skills has set his sights on crossing another goal-line, this time running for California's Secretary of State!

Is California "Dunn" for the Secretary?

Damon Dunn for CA Sec. of State!

Explore your freethinking mind to contemplate solutions to California's well-publicized troubles. The Golden State is known for its ground-breaking innovation, its unparalleled creativity and its history of using that brainpower to overcome tough times.

"That's just a narrative," Damon Dunn counters. "I don't speak in narratives. Narratives don't solve problems. Actions solve problems."

You once knew him as No. 80, Stanford's playmaking kick-off returner/wide receiver who returned three kickoffs for touchdowns between 1994 and 1997. You might remember Dunn as the player Tyrone Willingham referred to as "Rev," as in Reverend, since Dunn became a licensed Baptist minister at age 19.

Dunn is now out to add another title to his name: Secretary of State for California. The 33-year-old is the Republican Party candidate for California's top elections officer, a man who would supervise the state's elections and ballot measures. He spent the recent holidays resting up at home in Irvine, preparing for a challenging year of campaigning leading up to the 2010 election against Democratic incumbent Debra Bowen.

"We have to ask ourselves tough questions," said Dunn, who grew up in Mansfield, Texas, the same hometown of current Cardinal freshman tailback Stefan Taylor.

The man who speaks of posing hard questions is no stranger to overcoming difficulty. Dunn's mother Ramona was only 15 when she became pregnant with Damon. The father was Mike Lockett, the University of Texas' starting fullback in the late '70s. Lockett was killed in a car accident while driving back to campus when Dunn was only three.

"My mom wore a scarlet letter on her chest for what she went through at such a young age," Dunn said. "She's a success story. We talk all the time. She'll always inspire me."

Since graduating in 1998, Dunn has made a comfortable living in commercial real estate. His Stanford roots remain a frequent topic, given that his Orange County home is so close to so many USC-backers.

"Football is the common denominator," he said. "It helps in the connection process you have with other people." A recent Los Angeles Times article about him noted a play that came at the expense of those whose vote he's courting. Conventional wisdom says that USC alumni and fans - heads expanded with success over the past decade - have forgiven Dunn for his 93-yard kickoff return for a touchdown during Stanford's 24-20 victory in 1996.

On non-football topics, Dunn speaks in excited and vibrant tones. Diverse political heroes include Martin Luther King, Barack Obama and Governor Pete Wilson. He remains a political novice, having never run for office previously. He first registered to vote as a Democrat a decade ago but never actually went to the polls until May of 2009. Like a lost soul finding religion, Dunn found the proper path to affecting meaningful change, encouraged by a lasting relationship with former U.S. Secretary of State Condi Rice, whom he met while a student at Stanford, when Rice served as the University's Provost. Now Dunn feels he "gets" it. No more standing on the sidelines and failing to get involved in the process. As he told the Los Angeles Times, "Who better to reach a non-voter than a recovering non-voter?"

Critics point to a lack of political experience and the undeniable fact of Dunn's own poor history of voting should count against him. [Ed. - Yeah, well, a great deal of "political experience" and consistent majority-crushing voting by the Dems sure haven't helped California much in recent years.]

Dunn spoke of the opportunity presented by California's troubling economic downturn.

"If I get elected, I'll take it upon myself to do exit interviews with the companies who leave our state for economic reasons. I'll give that information to other elected officials. As of now, only the secretary of state gets to know that kind of information. We need to grow our revenues. We need another version of the tech boom of the '90s."

Microsoft TV ads of the '90s asked viewers "Where do you want to go today?" At the time, Dunn was busy gaining chunks of gridiron yardage.

He was part of the famed 1994 recruiting class, returning kickoffs and snaring passes from Steve Stenstrom, Mark Butterfield and Chad Hutchinson while becoming a four-year letterman. The recruiting Class of '94 group's 14 members started nearly 280 games between them, meaning that each member was a starter for an average of two full seasons. It was an uneasy beginning: Dunn lost a fumble on a punt against Northwestern on his first college play. He bounced back to run a kick back 100 yards weeks later at Arizona State.

Dunn remains a close friendship with another Texas-bred member of that landmark recruiting class: Anthony Bookman a regular caller on Dunn's Blackberry. He's also tight with fellow receiver Troy Walters, also from Texas. The 1999 Biletnikoff Award winner just finished his second season as offensive coordinator and wide receivers coach for Indiana State, where former Cardinal receiver and All-American return specialist Luke Powell coaches defensive backs.

"Being a Stanford football player, it's being the ultimate leader," he said. "The combination of the demands of the football field and the classroom, you have no choice but to assert yourself and be a leader."

Who will lead California? Why not Damon Dunn? He can use some blockers! Republicans are a touchdown underdog these days in the Golden State.

Subject: FW: Debra Bowen attacks Orly Taitz fund raiser presser sent to BAN / Richard Winger

Dear Richard,

The field of Republicans who want to unseat Debra Bowen as California's Secretary of State is now set, and we just received some amazing news — Orly Taitz, the leader of the so-called "birther" movement that has spent years challenging President Obama's citizenship, is running against Debra for Secretary of State.

As you know, wealthy developer Damon Dunn, who says he got into the race at Karl Rove's urging, is also running for the Republican nomination. Whoever prevails in the primary MUST be taken seriously because of their ability to raise money and distort the issues through their national right-wing networks.

Please contribute today to help Debra stand against right-wing ideologues like Orly Taitz, and continue serving the people of California!

Orly Taitz' candidacy would be amusing if it weren't so serious. Her primary reason for running is to challenge President Obama's citizenship and invalidate the 2008 election. In fact, Taitz has sued Debra twice to try to invalidate Obama's victory.

We can't let fringe conspiracy theorists use this office to get a foot in the door and undermine our democracy.

Debra's opponents are well connected, and have the ability to raise large sums of money from across the country. We must make sure she has the resources to beat them.

Please contribute today to help Debra stand against right-wing ideologues like Orly Taitz, and continue serving the people of California!

We can't underestimate the importance of this race. The Secretary of State is the one person in state government who is responsible for the integrity of our elections. As we saw in Florida in 2000 and in Ohio four years later, we need public servants we trust in this position, not people with a political agenda.

Debra has long served the people of California with integrity. We need her in the Secretary of State's office, not a conspiracy theorist like Orly Taitz.

Please contribute \$25 or more today so that Debra can defeat Orly Taitz and her financial backers — whose sole goal is to challenge President Obama's citizenship and right to be President of the United States!

Thank you for your support. We must do all we can to re-elect Debra, and fight against the right-wing radicals backing her opponents.

Sincerely,

A DOWN-THE-TICKET RACE WITH TWO LIKELY WINNERS”

CALIFORNIA FOCUS
FOR RELEASE: TUESDAY, MARCH 16, 2010, OR THEREAFTER

BY THOMAS D. ELIAS
“A DOWN-THE-TICKET RACE WITH TWO LIKELY WINNERS”

No one in California politics gives 33-year-old Republican Damon Dunn much chance of unseating Democratic Secretary of State Debra Bowen this fall.

Not only is she a well-entrenched political veteran, but even Dunn, a Baptist pastor and former football player turned Orange County-based real estate developer and shopping mall owner, concedes she has a record of accomplishment in her first four years of holding statewide office, especially when it comes to restoring voters' faith in the state's voting techniques.

“She gets credit for restoring some integrity to the process,” Dunn said in an interview, referring to Bowen's review of electronic voting machines and the resulting return to large-scale use of paper ballots. In fact, she gets so much credit that as of early March, Dunn was the only declared Republican candidate running against her. There was still a possibility that another might jump in: Orly Taitz, another Orange County figure who is a leader of the “birther” movement that questions whether President Obama is eligible for his job.

But Dunn, the only Republican now campaigning, enthusiastically and unequivocally says he will win this fall and become California's first African-American statewide officeholder since Mervyn Dymally was lieutenant governor in the late 1970s.

But he won't be bitter if he loses. “I'm not in this to win; I'm in this to help,” he declares. “This state made me. My mama had me when she was 16. I was on welfare. Few people have lived poorer than me.”

He describes growing up in a family of 10, but still doing well enough academically and athletically to win a Stanford University football scholarship and later play on four National Football League clubs. He admits never voting until last spring's special election, saying, “My family didn't vote – that was a bad habit.”

But he insists his ideas for the office are good and that his not having voted in the past shouldn't matter as he seeks to be California's chief election official. “Not voting has nothing to do with the work,” he said.

Part of what he envisions: “Only the secretary of state gets a notice whenever a business in California shuts down or leaves,” Dunn said. “The secretary of state can examine the exact reasons and try to get something done about them. I would assign one of the eight appointees the secretary of state gets to that task alone.”

He also thinks he can reach out to other non-voters better than Bowen. “Who can reach non-voters better than a recovering non-voter?” he asks.

He has

Bowen says she'll gladly debate Dunn sometime after the June primary election, but says his ideas are naïve, if idealistic.

"Most businesses that close down are not leaving the state," she said. "Even in good times, only one in eight businesses that starts up will survive the first year. A lot of closures are due to bankruptcy, too, and the economy. Businesses are closing at about the same rate in every part of the country. So if you followed up on every closure, you'd be wasting a lot of time."

And when it comes to new voter outreach, she said, "You discover that this is a huge state and there's a limit to how many places you can actually go. So we accomplish a lot of outreach through partnerships with businesses and unions and chambers of commerce and schools. You have to create relationships and then leverage them."

One thing Bowen doesn't buy is the notion that Dunn's candidacy is the product of a plot devised by Republican strategist Karl Rove, long the chief political adviser to former President George W. Bush, for the GOP to take control of the national election process at the state level.

Some Democrats claim there is such a Rove-led conspiracy, an extension of the belief that former Florida Secretary of State Katherine Harris threw the 2000 election to Bush and former Ohio Secretary of State Kenneth Blackwell did the same for him in 2004.

The belief that Dunn might be part of such a plan was furthered by a newspaper report that Rove now advises Dunn. In fact, says Dunn, he has met Rove only once, fleetingly. "He wouldn't remember my name. I wasn't even a candidate when I met him," Dunn said. "Nobody recruited me. I wish they did because it would be great to get some donations."

Bowen scoffs at the idea of a Rovian plot. "I'm not much for conspiracy theories," she said. "Besides, I don't think Karl Rove would exactly be an asset in California."

Even if he were, it would still be difficult to unseat an incumbent widely credited with restoring electoral confidence to California. Where does that leave Dunn? Probably with a promising future, especially since he's shown a willingness to serve a campaign apprenticeship that will give him a leg up in future elections.

Which is why this contest might be the rare one that produces two winners.

Dunn claims he didn't vote in the last presidential election, but says Obama is his hero. I'm not buying it. People should be aware that Dunn was a registered Democrat for 10 years and failed to disclose that on his registration. he is also ineligible to run as a Republican because he has only been a Republican for 8 months. This guy is a shill for the Democrats to prevent Orly Taitz from winning because they know she is not going to allow Obama on the ballot in 2012 without proof he is natural-born United States citizen.

Dear Ms. Barnett:

We are responding to your recent complaint regarding what you perceived to be our failure to act on your 12/09/09 letter questioning Barack Obama's birth records. You also provided a notarized certificate of acknowledgement as required for complaints alleging a violation of Title III of the Help America Vote Act (HAVA). However, your complaint was not treated as a HAVA complaint because you did not allege a HAVA violation.

No authority exists to require the Secretary of State to make an inquiry into or demand detailed proof of citizenship from Presidential candidates. Elections Code section 6901 required the Secretary of State to provide local elections officials with a certified list of the names and party affiliations of candidates nominated by their respective parties to appear on the November 4, 2008 Presidential General Election ballot. After the election, Elections Code section 15505 required the Secretary of State to certify to the Governor the names of the electors receiving the highest number of votes.

The Secretary of State does not have a clear or present ministerial duty to demand documentary proof that any past or future Presidential candidate is qualified to serve as President of the United States. Government Code section 12172.5 provides that the Secretary of State "shall see that state election laws are enforced," but does not impose such a duty. As no law requires the Secretary of State to demand proof of citizenship from Presidential candidates, there is no duty to act under GC 12172.5.

For your information, the appropriate remedy for an issue concerning the qualifications of a President is an action before the United States Congress pursuant to the Twelfth Amendment to the United States Constitution and 3 U.S.C. section 15.

Sincerely,

Election Fraud Investigation Unit

I object to the Electoral College members votes being given to Barack Obama, the Democrat Party Nominee for POTUS, because I am not satisfied that his birth records indicate he is qualified for the office of President under the requirements of Article II of the U.S. Constitution; and because he has not made his birth records available to answer the question notwithstanding having been sued on that issue in courts across the country. Obama's Hawaiian Certification of Live Birth has been considered to be a fraud by document experts. Even if Obama's COLB were authentic, Hawaiian law allowed "foreign" births to registered at the year Obama reported himself to be born, 1961.

Futhermore, even if Obama was born in the United States, he would NOT be considered a Natural Born citizen because his father was a British Citizen from Kenya. Obama admits being a British citizen at birth and then two years later his citizenship was lawfully changed to Kenyan citizenship of which he kept until he was in his 20's. There are cases before the Supreme Court right now to attempt to clarify this situation.

If you were to allow the electoral vote to happen and then it is determined that Obama is NOT a natural born citizen, he would then become a Usurper which would put our country in a Constitutional crisis. Please do whatever it takes to avoid this crisis. DO NOT ALLOW THE ELECTORS TO VOTE FOR OBAMA UNTIL IT IS PROVEN HE IS A NATURAL BORN CITIZEN. I demand that the state of California hire a document expert to perform their own investigation into Obama's COLB to determine if he committed fraud.

I have sworn affidavits from document experts if you would like these for the file. I also have additional research to assist you if needed.

Sincerely,

Pamela Barnett

RE: CRIMINAL COMPLAINT AGAINST DEBRA BOWEN, SECRETARY OF STATE

This is a criminal complaint against Secretary of State Debra Bowen for committing Misprision of Fraud by failing to act on my fraud complaint (registered with her office Dec. 9, 2008 - attached) that alerted her that Barack Hussein Obama's online (internet) Hawaii Certification of Live Births (3 versions in total) are all forgeries and that there were affidavits filed in court that confirmed the fraud. I had asked her to perform an immediate investigation and halt the elector's vote until the investigation was completed.

As evidenced by a letter I received from the Secretary of State Election Fraud Investigation Unit (dated March 23- attached), in response to my follow-up letter (letter dated March 7th, attached), Bowen failed to investigate the fraud that she was informed of that affected the outcome of the California election of Barack Obama. It is her duty as the State Representative of elections to ensure legal elections. She has failed to do this by ignoring election fraud.

Covering up felony fraud is Misprision of felony Fraud. If your office fails to investigate the Obama forgeries, you are also guilty of misprision of felony fraud.

As a California citizen and a registered California voter who voted in the 2008 Presidential election, I fully expect you to prosecute Secretary of State Debra Bowen for misprision of fraud and investigate the document forgeries put forth by Barack Hussein Obama. Bowen should also be removed immediately from her position of Secretary of State as she does not ensure legal elections. The Election Fraud Investigation Unit wrongfully dismisses the fraud complaint, because they say the SOS does not have the responsibility to vet candidates; however she does have the duty to investigate and ensure prosecution in matters of election fraud.

I pray that Edmund "Gerry" Brown, AG, and his office care more about our Country and the rule of law than his political career and they fully investigate this fraud performed by Obama and his supporters, as well as the crime of misprision of felony fraud by Secretary of State Debra Bowen.

Sincerely,

Pamela Barnett

As no law requires the Secretary of State to demand proof of citizenship from Presidential candidates, there is no duty to act under GC 12172.5.

For your information, the appropriate remedy for an issue concerning the qualifications of a President is an action before the United States Congress pursuant to the Twelfth Amendment to the United States Constitution and 3 U.S.C. section 15.

I object to the Electoral College members votes being given to Barack Obama, the Democrat Party Nominee for POTUS, because I am not satisfied that his birth records indicate he is qualified for the office of President under the requirements of Article II of the U.S. Constitution; and because he has not made his birth records available to answer the question notwithstanding having been sued on that issue in courts across the country. Obama's Hawaiian Certification of Live Birth has been considered to be a fraud by document experts. Even if Obama's COLB were authentic, Hawaiian law allowed "foreign" births to registered at the year Obama reported himself to be born, 1961.

Futhermore, even if Obama was born in the United States, he would NOT be considered a Natural Born citizen because his father was a British Citizen from Kenya. Obama admits being a British citizen at birth and then two years later his citizenship was lawfully changed to Kenyan citizenship of which he kept until he was in his 20's. There are cases before the Supreme Court right now to attempt to clarify this situation.

If you were to allow the electoral vote to happen and then it is determined that Obama is NOT a natural born citizen, he would then become a Usurper which would put our country in a Constitutional crisis. Please do whatever it takes to avoid this crisis. DO NOT ALLOW THE ELECTORS TO VOTE FOR OBAMA UNTIL IT IS PROVEN HE IS A NATURAL BORN CITIZEN. I demand that the state of California hire a document expert to perform their own investigation into Obama's COLB to determine if he committed fraud.

I have sworn affidavits from document experts if you would like these for the file. I also have additional research to assist you if needed.

Sincerely,

Pamela Barnett

DECLARATION OF XXXXXXXXXXXXX

I, XXXXXXXXXXXXX, declare as follows:

- I am Dr. XXXXXXXXXXXXX, and I hold a PhD in Instructional Systems with 25+ years of post-doctoral work experience, and a Masters Degree in Educational Research, Design, and Testing. I have worked with computers and computer printers, plotters, and optical/digital scanners, typesetting, offset printing, and automatic typewriters, for over thirty (30) years. I am submitting this opinion anonymously because I work for a government contractor and need to remain anonymous in order to keep my employer free from any ramifications due to presenting this opinion. In addition, my family needs the opinion to be anonymous due to the nature of my work.
- In my professional career I have held positions as a Computer Programmer, Web Designer, Media Consultant, Research Director and Statistician. I have testified as a Statistical Expert in Governmental hearings over the last twenty (20) years.

3. I began working with computers on or about 1969 and with graphic arts since 1965. I have worked with document image scanners since 1982 and with digital images and digital editing software since 1987. I have received professional training in the use of Adobe Photoshop and Image Ready software with a particular focus on creating web graphics. I have also worked with laser printers since 1986.

4. My father was a professional photographer who taught me how to use high-end cameras, such as a Hasselblad he gave me when I was eight (8) years old, and have been using them ever since. In addition to using DLR and SLR cameras, and running a film developing studio, I started using digital cameras in my work field on or about 1998.

5. With my combined work experiences and education, I am more than capable of detecting anomalies on digital images and photographs, whether naturally caused or man-made, as well as determining how they were created, and if they were subsequently modified.

6. During the Barack Hussein Obama's [hereinafter "Obama"] Presidential campaign, there have been numerous rumors circulating about Obama's citizenship status.

7. Jim Geraghty, a Writer for National Review magazine and the National Review Online, posted a story to his blog, the Campaign Spot that appeared in the National Review Online, raising issues that Obama was born in Kenya, his middle name was really Muhammad and Obama's first name was really Barry. Mr. Geraghty stated that several Reporters had asked for a copy of Obama's birth certificate, but, all requests were subsequently denied. Mr. Geraghty further stated Obama could answer the questions regarding the time and place of his birth, citizenship status, full legal name, and the names of his biological parents, if he would simply release for inspection, a copy of his original, long-form birth certificate.

8. The Daily Kos blog, a pro-Obama website, posted an image, measuring 2427 x 2369 pixels, at 300 DPI that they claimed was a scanned copy of Obama's "original birth certificate," sent to them by a spokesperson for the Obama Campaign. Before cropping, this document image measured 2550 x 3300 pixels. By the end of the same day, the Obama Campaign posted a duplicate copy of the same cropped image on their website, My.BarackObama.com, but this image copy had been proportionately reduced in size by approximately 42% and saved at a lower resolution. The size of this particular image was 1024 x 1000 pixels at 100 DPI. With this image, Obama's Campaign placed the following statement on their website:

"You may have recently heard right-wing smears questioning Barack Obama's birth certificate and citizenship. These assertions are completely false and designed to play into the worst kind of stereotypes. You can see Barack Obama's birth certificate for yourself and help push back with the truth..."

9. The very next day, the Obama's Campaign removed the document image from their Campaign website, and posted a resized copy of the same document image to a new website, "Fight The Smears" (fightthesmears.com), but only after further reducing the copy size to 585 x 575 pixels, which was almost half the size of the original posted image, and one-third of its quality.

10. Also, Politifact.org, a pro-Obama fact checking website, published a copy of the same image as posted on the Daily Kos, but also disproportionately reduced it to 811 x 786 pixels, or 1/3 of its size and 1/6 of its image quality.

11. Factcheck.org, a pro-Obama fact checking website posted a full-sized image copy of same document image that appeared on the Daily Kos and Obama's "Fight The Smears" websites. Factcheck's image copy was identical to the Daily Kos image copy, but was not cropped to the borders. Factcheck.org is run by Obama supporters and is funded by the Annenberg foundation through the Annenberg Public Policy Center of the University of Pennsylvania.

12. Factcheck.org made the following statement to explain how they received their image copy:

"Bloggers raised questions based on the absence of evidence, specifically the lack of a publicly available copy of a birth certificate and the supposed secrecy surrounding it". According to FactCheck, Tommy Vietor at the Obama campaign sent a message to them and "other reporters" saying, "I know there have been some rumors spreading about Obama's citizenship, so I wanted to make sure you all had a copy of his birth certificate."

13. Three months later, no other "reporters" have ever received a copy of this "birth certificate" image, or any other birth certificate image, from Tommy Vietor or from anyone else connected with the Obama Campaign. As noted above, the only parties outside of the Obama Campaign to have ever received a copy of this "birth certificate" image are (a) The Daily Kos, a pro-Obama blog, (b) FactCheck.org, a pro-Obama political research group, and (c) Politifact.org, another pro-Obama political research group. It is also worth mentioning that no copy of the reverse side of this "birth certificate" document was ever scanned, a side that contains all of the official certification instruments, such as the official Hawaiian Seal, State Registrar's signature, and date stamp of when the document was printed.

14. I noticed that the images posted on the Internet purporting to be the "original birth certificate" of Barack Hussein Obama, did not look like a regular birth certificate: On the top of the image border was the phrase, "Certification of Live Birth". Unlike traditional birth certificates, this image did not show the hospital name where Obama was born, did not have an attending physician's signature, did not have any signatures by the parents, or any of the other identifying information which "original" birth certificates have.

15. After reviewing the images purporting to be Obama's "original birth certificate," I contacted the Hawaii Department of Health and asked numerous questions of the Office of Vital Records and of the State Registrar, whose signature appears on all certified birth documents. I subsequently learned that this document, called, a "Certification of Live Birth," (COLB), is only a transcript of a birth record on file. This "Certification of Live Birth," (COLB), is a computer-generated graphic that contains only a limited amount of information retrieved from a person's birth record on file, and is not the same thing as an original birth certificate: It cannot be used to obtain a passport or to prove that its owner is a natural-born US citizen. I also learned that, after this paper document is printed, it has to be certified or validated by imprinting on it a special, embossed seal, a rubber date stamp showing when the COLB was printed, and lastly, a rubber stamp containing the signature of Hawaii's State Registrar. I also noted that the embossed Seal and Registrar's Signature stamp were not visible to the naked eye. The date stamp, however, was partially visible, in reverse, as the ink had apparently bled through from the back to the front side of the COLB paper.

16. Although there are four differently-sized images placed on four different websites, they were all copied from the same document image. In addition to posting a copy on their Fight The Smears website, the Obama Campaign emailed copies to the pro-Obama, Daily Kos website, Annenberg's Factcheck website, and lastly, the St. Petersburg Times, Politifact website. Found on all four images is a small, telltale object (actually, a piece of dirt left on the scanner glass) confirming that all four of these images were copied from a single document image. As I inspected the highest-quality image copy available (found on the Daily Kos), I saw anomalies in the text that would never exist in a genuine scan of a real document.

17. After enlarging the image four times its size, I noticed that the text in the image bore the signs of being graphically altered after the image had been created. Specifically, given that the text in a COLB is printed on a green background, there should be green dots, or pixels, visible in between the black letters that comprise the text. What I found was almost the total absence of any green pixels. In their place, I found gray and white pixels. These pixel patterns are significant because they would never be found in a genuine document scan. To validate my findings that the text in this COLB document image was intentionally altered, and that the pixel patterns were not naturally-occurring printer or scanner artifacts, I made over 700 test scans and images using an actual paper COLB and different scanners. By trying different combinations of scanning and image parameters. I was finally able to replicate the Kos image so closely that other image experts thought it was the same Kos image, and not my "clone." From this date forward, when I first discovered the evidence of image tampering, and regardless of the unfamiliar format of the COLB and the questionable information it contained, I collected a great deal of additional evidence, that the scanned image alleged to be a true copy of Obama's original COLB was forged, and that this altered image of an official state-issued document is nothing less than a false identification document as defined by Chapter 18, Section 1028 of the United States Code.

18. All of my findings pertain to a single source image from which the Obama Campaign made four (4) copies. These copies were posted to four different websites: FightTheSmears.com, DailyKos.com, FactCheck.org, and Politifact.com, as referred to and described above. These images are still posted on these websites, and are described in my Final Report, which is attached hereto and incorporated in by reference as Exhibit "A"

19. Slightly more than two months after the publication of the COLB image on the Daily Kos and Obama's Campaign website, Factcheck published a story, Born in the U.S.A., in which they presented nine digital photographs that they allegedly made of Obama's "real, paper COLB" at his campaign headquarters - the same COLB used to make the document image they posted on June 16. Without a doubt, the COLB image that Factcheck posted is a forgery, and that Obama's real COLB, as proffered by Factcheck, is a nonexistent document. Factcheck had created a conundrum: if the image Factcheck posted is a forgery of a nonexistent document, then how can any genuine photos be made of it? The answer had to be that both the document image and the photographs were all forgeries.

20. I have thoroughly examined the photographs that FactCheck published, and have subsequently found clear and irrefutable evidence of tampering in both the alleged COLB object they photographed and in the photos themselves. One of those COLB objects was, in fact, a printout of a forged document image with a Seal superimposed onto it. FactCheck's photos reveal both the absence of known, relevant features found on a genuine 2007 COLB and the presence of illogical and impossible features that would never be found on a genuine 2007 COLB. Specifically, on the COLB objects photographed, the security border closely resembles the border found on a real 2007 COLB. However, both the embossed Seal and the State Registrar's Signature stamp do not match the same elements found on a real 2007 COLB, but perfectly match those found on a real 2008 COLB; or, in other words, something that would never happen in real life. Hawaii made three important changes to their COLBs from 2007 to 2008, including the use of a larger certificate layout, a new
