

Do You Feel Lucky?
Or
Does a Vote for Cruz = A Vote for Hillary?

By David Earl-Graef MD

As a conservative, can you imagine a President Hillary Clinton? The Hillary who praises Margaret Sanger the primordial American Eugenicist. The Hillary who embodies the core of progressive ideology to include abolition of your 2nd amendment rights and confiscation of the means to protect yourself? If you vote for Cruz are you increasing the probability that this will happen?

Please tell me this cannot be true! Hillary Clinton the one who possibly thinks “original intent” is how Bill got away with saying he did not have sex with Monica Lewinsky because his “original intent” was just to make out with her? The same Hillary who gave the Russians the “red launch button for a nuclear missile” thinking it was just a “relationship reset apparatus”? Yes, I know it was not a launch button for a Nuclear Missile but I will bet you that is exactly what the Russians thought when they saw it right before they wondered why it had “overcharge” in Russian written on it. What an imbecile she must be. Then again a lot of criminals like her are not total idiots but rather have that strange admixture of charisma, brilliance and idiocy all mixed up in one big felonious package, but that is another subject.

But seriously people, all kidding aside, can you imagine Hillary as President and how in the world could one come to such an apparently absurd conclusion that voting for Cruz equals a vote for Hillary.

After all, the voters in “Cruz control mode” like Glenn Beck (who appears to have fallen off the wagon) and not really thinking things through, with all due respect and no offense intended, will argue that in fact Cruz is nearly the opposite of Hillary. Cruz says and his supporters believe he is dead set against abortion and he is a staunch supporter of our 2nd amendment rights; a true defender of the Constitution. He has stated that our Constitution is not a living document and like Justice Scalia asserted it must be interpreted with original intent. So how can this be? The reason is quite simple: Trump is right again and Cruz lied. Go figure.

No person knows what is in another persons heart so this is not necessarily an endorsement for Trump as much as it is a denouncement of Hillary Clinton; who for all intents and purposes appears to be a criminal but lacking the charisma and brilliance, and having the dubious distinction of sharing the same tailor with Chairman Mao. Also no one knows what happens behind closed doors in Washington. It could be that Cruz has already “struck the deal” with Hillary as John McCain did with Obama and Senate Resolution 511 and kicked the Natural Born Citizen clause down the road. Then presto just like that, we have 8 years of Hussein

Obama or Barry Soetoro or whatever his name is. After all, to them it is just a historical document called the Constitution living or not, right? Maybe all this concern is about nothing and the fate of our nation will be decided in the General Election in a run off between Cruz and Hillary or maybe even Hillary will get indicted but that is a lot of unknowns.

So it comes down to this: Just like Dirty Harry, as a voter, you have to ask yourself one question. "Do you feel lucky.... well do ya?" Do you wish to take the chance that your vote will help to nominate Ted Cruz and possibly let the Federal Courts decide if Hillary gets to be our next President. Just as Trump has been trying to warn you, Ted Cruz lied about this issue being settled law. It most certainly is not. If you do not believe me just ask Orly Taitz who has fought this battle for at least the last eight years. You may agree with her or not but it would take a real con man to convince you it is settled law. Out of all the lies Cruz has told this one is "the whopper" and is the most easily discernable.

So not only are you gambling with the future of our Republic when you vote for Cruz, you are hinging your bets on a liar. It is very big gamble indeed, with not only the Presidency but also the balance of power in the Supreme Court to be determined for generations. So a vote for Ted Cruz just may be equivalent to a vote for Hillary or at least the very real possibility that you are surrendering your voice to the Federal Court system.

You may not like Trump but on this issue he is spot on regarding the big question mark that is over Ted Cruz; namely does a vote for Cruz equal a Vote for Hillary Clinton? Who knows, but is it worth risk?